Story Line/Notes: Two 5-minute video capsules that appeal to a broad audience and explain research in a general way. These videos will attempt to address the mistrust and fear that people have about research; to show the relevance of research to First Peoples, and to increase research literacy so that those in charge of decision-making can properly assess the potential for impact and the potential benefits of partnering with researchers.
It is a small collaborative project with members of La Boîte Rouge VIF and discussion circle members from KSDPP.
